Peach Crop Will be Large and Trip Showed Wonderful Fruit Development.

County Agent R. E. Underwood was in charge of the Fruit Growers Association of Adams County auto trip, traveling through the fruit section of the county. About one hundred people in between 30 and 40 cars made the trip and everywhere they were welcomed. There were four stops and dinner was served at the Vocational High School Building, Arendtsville, by the Arendtsville Women's Auxiliary of the Annie M. Warner Hospital, all proceeds being donated to the Nurses' Home Fund now being raised. The trippers were enthusiastic over what they saw and one expressed it, "Oh boy, some trip." Some peaches in county and let me tell you some apples; and oh, boy, what a dinner!"

The fruit growers left Gettysburg at about 8:30 Wednesday morning and went to Fairfield, then to Orrtanna, Cashtown, Arendtsville, Biglerville, Aspers, Idaville, and ended the journey at York Springs. The State Department of Agriculture in its fruit estimate for August 1, reports that Adams county is going to have a banner crop of 238,818 bushels of apples. Yet there are many local growers who place the crop at over 300,000 bushels. The view of the department is that Adams county will produce one-third of the total crop from 16 counties of the State.

Oh boy! Some Adams County.

Thin Stand of Potatoes—One Cause.

That many of the poor stands of potatoes in Adams county this season were due to poor seed storage is the opinion of E. L. Nixon, potato extension specialist at State College. Grandfather's cellar was a good storage room in its day but now that the present generation has converted it into a furnace room, it no longer makes a good storage bin for "spuds."

There are two possible methods of storing potatoes so that they will keep well and make good seed, according to Nixon. One is artificial cold storage in which the potatoes are kept at a temperature of about 40 degrees. This method is costly for the ordinary grower and great care has to be taken that too many green tubers are not piled in one large bin without having plenty of air circulation.

"The cheaper method for the ordinary potato grower," says the extension specialist, "is to pit the crop right in the field. This is the way a successful grower of Huntingdon county does the job.

"He chooses a well drained spot in the field and plows out two very shallow furrows, not more than 6 inches deep. The bottom of this trench is filled with a layer of straw, and air vents, made by nailing four boards together, are stood on end at frequent intervals in the trench. The potatoes are piled around these box ventilators, covered with a six inch layer of straw and the dirt thrown out by the plow is piled on to a thickness of a foot."

If the potatoes are to be left only a short time or if the winters are mild Nixon believes that this is sufficient protection. In most cases, it is well to add another six inch layer of straw and dirt. In extremely cold localities, it is well to cover the pit with manure.

Some farmers, storing only 50 bushels of potatoes, prefer a conical pile. This requires practically the same method and is just as effective in preserving the "spuds."

"Pitting potatoes was practiced in more than twenty counties last winter," Nixon states, "and in every instance, the stock came through in good shape and made excellent seed."

Patching Thin Clover.

"A thin stand of clover (young) can be patched up just as surely as mother patches the old overalls," is the verdict of extension specialists at State College.

This is encouraging to many farmers of Adams county where drought has killed much of the new seeding. Just as there must be sufficient material of the old overalls left to make patching possible and profitable, so there must be enough of the new seeding alive to make a good springing of clover or patching will not pay.

Where practically all the seeding is dead, it is advisable to prepare a new seed bed by discing or plowing and sow the clover just as one would sow alfalfa.

Many of the wheat and oats fields of Adams county have sufficient clover remaining to make "patching" advisable. Farmers who have disc clover seeders are going over their fields drilling in clover seed to thicken the stand.

"If you don't happen to have such a seeder," says the Farm Bureau Agent, "a disk grain drill can be used by running the clover seed in to the drill boots. Following with a roller, will aid in covering the seed."

"Scattering the seed broadcast on top of the ground at this time of the year is poor practice and has little chance of success. This is especially true if the fields are foul with weeds and fall grasses."

His health had not been of the best since the accident of several years ago, when a leg was broken and in the mending he became permanently crippled and never got about with the ease which he did prior to the accident.

Dr. Himes was born in McAllisterville, Perry county, Pa., on June 3, 1848. He entered Gettysburg College

C. and John, Harry M., and Theodore, at home. Four sisters survive, Mrs. Jacob Sharrah, of Cashtown; Mrs. Wm. Shindeldecker, of Orrtanna R. Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at Flohr's Church by Rev. D. T. Koser, former pastor of that charge, and interment in the cemetery adjoining the church.

John Hartlaub, a native of Adams county, died at the State Hospital, Harrisburg, last Friday evening at the advanced age of 86 years. Mr. Hartlaub was born and spent most of his life in Mt. Pleasant township, in the vicinity of Bonneauville. He is survived by the following sons and daughters: F. J. Hartlaub, of Littlestown; A. M. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with services in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Dr. L. Aug. Reutter, with interment in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Father Will Whalen, of the Old Jesuit Mission, of Buchanan Valley, Adams county, was asked if he found staging those big picnics of his drudgery. He admitted the work is hard, but what grieves him most is the economics that have to be practiced. His sense of humor usually finds something to laugh at. His best piece of merriment to date, he said, was the trial running of his flying horses. He secured the carousel from a defunct carnival in Brooklyn. The idea was to save the price of a band. The deejaining music of the flying contraption would serve that purpose. The complicated mechanism, after many difficulties, was installed. A mistake was made in using a large wheel instead of a small one to run the circular platform with its zoological garden of lions, goats, horses and mules. "Then," said Father Whalen, "whiz! the thing was a mere streak of speed. Also one long yowl of terror. A hair switch left its moorings, and lit on the bough of a dead chestnut, has sailed by like airplanes, spectacles vanished. I heard of false teeth that were nearly swallowed. A set was found trampled in the mud later. One stately grandame, who had mounted the merry-go-round with pride, got off a sorry old wreck, gassed, blinded, deafened, seasick, her bonnet on her ear. She had to be led home, walking like a sailor, two husky youths piloting. Her first ride on a carousal—and her last."

David Thomas, the first Justice of the Peace in Arendtsville, after that borough was created, and re-elected to succeed himself for a quarter of a century, died at his home in Arendtsville on Tuesday morning. He was not confined to his bed and death came suddenly from apoplexy. He was in his 77th year. Squire Thomas was an ardent Democrat and was one of those men who was just and upright and was held in highest esteem in his community. The funeral was held on Friday morning. He leaves a wife and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Charles Tate of near Aspers Station.

Charles J. Deardorff, widely known farmer, lumberman and orchardist, died suddenly at his home near Orrtanna last Friday evening of organic heart trouble aged 52 years, 8 months and 18 days. Mr. Deardorff had been in declining health for several years but his condition was not regarded as serious at any time. He was a son of the late Peter and of Mrs. Annie Deardorff, and was born in Franklin township, where he lived until 1919 when he moved across the line into Hamiltonian township. He was active in politics, having been a Republican candidate for a seat in the State Legislature and for the office of sheriff. He was a frequent visitor in Gettysburg in connection with his interests as a lumberman and orchardist. He is survived by his mother, his wife, who was Miss Margaret Shultz, and the following sons and daughters: Hanson C., of Cashtown; Paul K., of Orrtanna; R. D.; Mrs. Robert Tipton, of Hanover; Misses Blanche J., Cora A., Boyd M., Emma
